

Where do my answers go?

The journey of Growing Up in Australia data

Every two years you are interviewed for Growing Up in Australia.

Personal details are removed and everyone's answers are combined and sorted to create the data set for each wave.

Meanwhile people across Australia ask questions about how we can best help kids as they grow up.

By analysing all the data collected over the years researchers make important discoveries to help answer these questions.

These discoveries are spread far and wide and help to improve the lives of Australian kids now and into the future.
